 ose trees seem to be,
 Spring's call come forth, unbidden,
 duty, and bloom for me?
 green Earth, whose throbbing
 old's in her gown at night,
 ner sleep, and with blades and
 ents to release my sight?
 the valley yonder
 ontentous bloom and grew;
 as gone that drifted them under,
 up sunward and bloom anew?
 s blew and a sweet storm pelted,
 the Year's return, I wonder,

ay when shows have melted,
gleam up from the bare, brown

An Unparalleled Offer!

A COMPLETE ENCYCLOPEDIA GIVEN AWAY.

A Necessity to Every Farmer.

A work originally published at $9.00 and sold only by subscription, and of which 400 copies have been printed for sale, will be sent with THE WEEKLY GLOBE one year for

ONLY $3.00.

Three dollars will give you this magnificent illustrated volume of 1085 pages and THE WEEKLY GLOBE one year. Both will be delivered free of postage.

A complete agricultural library. The largest, latest and best illustrated work on live stock and agriculture, by E. M. JONATHAN PERIAM, in one imperial volume of 1085 double column pages, printed on fine paper and profusely illustrated. Bound in English cloth, extra, $9. The American Encyclopedia of Agriculture is of great value to the farmer, live stock doctor, breeder, stock raiser, nurseryman, gardener, the housewife, and in the library as a work of reference. The author, Mr. Periam, has been for forty years a practical farmer, stockgrower and journalist, and as such is widely known. The work is at once compact and comprehensive, covering the whole field without undue enlargement of any special topic. The aim was to supply the long-felt want of a thorough investigation from a modern standpoint, and brought down to the present time, of the several departments of agriculture, and the improved processes, based on modern science, connected therewith. The compiler uses plain language, giving special prominence to established facts, and the subjects are arranged in alphabetical order, so that the work is an index to itself.

It has several rich plates and hundreds of wood engravings. It is strongly and handsomely bound.

THIS WORK IS FREE TO ANY ONE SENDING TO SUBSCRIBERS $3.00.

As there are only 400 copies to be given away, this should be secured immediately.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 12, 1887.

IMPORTANT TO ALL.

Many subscriptions will expire with this issue, and perhaps this is your last paper. Will you, therefore, please examine the date of expiration of your paper, which is printed upon every copy you receive?

OF COURSE YOU WILL RENEW,

because THE WEEKLY GLOBE is the brightest, newest and cheapest weekly that your family can procure. It has paid you many times its price the past year, and really will cost you but a trifle compared to what it will bring you during 1887.

THE CASH PREMIUMS

are extra inducements to those who contemplate forming clubs. You can form a club easily in your neighborhood, and perhaps secure one of them. Why not send for sample copies at once, and get as many subscribers as you can? If you cannot attend to it, your little son or daughter can get subscribers and earn enough money to buy something that he or she has asked you to buy.

EXPIRATIONS IN FEBRUARY.

Quite a number of subscriptions will expire in February and March, but club-raters, by securing renewals of them during January, can make them count towards securing one of the cash premiums. Only one month, or thirty days, remains in which to form a club and secure a premium. Begin now.

TO CLUB RAISERS.

Old as well as new subscribers count in the contest for a cash premium, and a club may be composed of residents of either one town, or more than one town, as it pleases the club raiser. Now is the time to begin to form a club. Send for free sample copies and agents' rates.

RESIDENT CLEVELAND'S COURSE.

The affirmations of a dozen, more or less, esteemed Republican contemporaries to the contrary notwithstanding, President CLEVELAND enters upon the new year with far greater popularity than that accorded to him one year ago. Nay, more, if the Republicans would acknowledge their real ideas on the subject, we should find them depressed with increased belief that nothing can possibly bring about the return of the Republican party to power two years hence. Every candid man, Democrat or Republican, who is a shrewd political observer, sees and feels that the President has increased his strength within the last few months, while yet retaining in its entirety the respect of his political opponents, who cannot help admiring his integrity and his firmness. With business men he is now, as he always has been, intensely strong, and his independent friends stick to him like brothers. He has lost no element of his old strength, but has added a new one in the shape of more hearty sympathy from party supporters.

A TRIUMPH FOR HONEST LABOR.

The success of the striking miners at Wilkesbarre deserves more than passing notice. Their victory is one which has an important bearing, and should give pleasure to all those who believe in the prosperity of our American institutions. The fight was between the advocates of imported pauper labor on one side, and honest, deserving labor on the other. There was no chance for mistaking the issue. Men who live in America, pay taxes in America and carry their share of the common burden were roughly pushed aside and their places in the mines given to those who were imported as just so many machines might be. Nay, worse, for greedy mining corporations importing inanimate machines would be compelled to pay a duty, while on human machines there is no restriction whatever—an illustration, by the way, of the gross unfairness of free trade in labor and high protection in everything purchased by the laborer. The corporation tried its experiment just one week; then, having secured $100 for coal mined at an expenditure of $800 for labor and $2100 for "detectives," gave up the fight.

Every right-thinking citizen, whether capitalist or laborer, will rejoice in this instance of signal failure to supplant those who are of and part of us by those who know neither the sound nor the essence of constitutional liberty, nor care to know them. Honest labor is always welcome to our shores; convict and pauper labor must be kept out. And nothing will have a stronger tendency to keep it out than a few such failures as overtook the importers at the Wilkesbarre mine.

DEFEND THE COASTS!

The able articles that have appeared on coast defenses, one by Captain F. V. GREENE in the first number of Scribner's Magazine, the other by Lieutenant EUGENE GRIFFIN in the journal of the military service, and the recent speech of Senator HALE at the Merchants' dinner, have again re-awakened public interest in this important subject. It is time. When it appears from the undisputed testimony of able engineers that the cities along our coasts, with their $4,000,000,000 of valuable property, and millions of valuable lives, are completely at the mercy of any foreign power that has afloat a few modern heavy guns, it is no unreasonable alarm that calls loudly for such coast defenses as shall ensure protection to both.

Fortunately we are at peace with all the world. While we had better remain so as long as our present condition continues our own history and that of every other nation, should convince us that we are not likely to always escape entanglements with other powers that may result in war. Only last summer the people of New England, especially the citizens of Boston, were extremely anxious to have Mr. BAYARD visit the British lion's tail. But it was hard, on account of the treatment of fishermen in Canadian waters. His threatening attitude towards Mexico contrasted strangely, and was the subject of severe comment. When we learn, however, that England has seventy-one ships of war, any one of which could steam from the nearest British port, and in thirty-six hours compel the surrender of Boston and the cities in its immediate vicinity on the coast, and that Mexico is about the only power that has got a navy to be feared, the conduct of the secretary of state does not seem so mysterious or reprehensible.

Since the civil war our government has done hardly anything to prepare for offensive or defensive war, while other nations have been active. The invention of heavy guns renders our fortifications useless. Every first-class foreign power has a navy that could land on our shores and hold our coasts before they could be guarded. Even Chile has three ships against any one of which the fortifications of Boston could not stand an hour. Almost the last words of one of our greatest statesmen, and of our greatest soldier, were warnings of the dangers that threaten us along our defenceless coasts. The wise advice of Mr. TILDEN is fresh in the minds of all, and General GRANT, on his death-bed, called attention to this great peril. In the face of these known conditions, and the advice of these men, whose voices it has been found profitable to heed, not one dollar for the improvement of our coast defenses has been appropriated by Congress since 1875. With an overflowing treasury that could immediately afford five times the amount needed to begin the work of properly protecting our cities, without additional taxation, the case of (2) statesmen are racking their brains and wearing out vigorous constitutions in device means to take the internal tax off from and tobacco in order to reduce the revenue to their idea of the needs of government.

Two years is the shortest time allowed by experts to build a heavy modern sea gun. Five million lives and four billions of property are in danger and nothing is being done, and nothing attempted to protect them. In a time of senseless warring in a church a devout old lady prayed for a "shower of common sense" to fall upon the congregation. O that such a shower might fall, and fall quickly on the heads of our national law-makers, who spend their time in petty politics while the lives and property of the American people are recklessly exposed to destruction!

WHAT OF THE CONGO?

Explorer STANLEY of "Dark Continent" fame is to be given the freedom of the city of London next Thursday. This is quite right, for Mr. STANLEY needs freedom wherever he may be. He was accustomed to a great deal of it, according to his own account, in Africa, though at the expense of his health. He was pressed to service at the pistol's point. This thing will hardly do for London, but he will probably be allowed a sort of "as-you-like-it" liberty in a social and banqueting way during the ceremony of being made a freeman of the city of London. Meanwhile, what of Congo, which Mr. STANLEY set forth to save with such urgent haste a few weeks ago, even abandoning his American lecture field at the call of duty? Why does he now linger in London to idly dally in feasts and frolics, Has he been lured by pleasure from Africa's burning plains, where the turbid waters of the Congo roll darkly to the southern seas? Or was the mysterious mission which arrested the startled attention of a wondering world merely a subterfuge on the part of the explorer's London friends to take him away from a lecturing tour which might have been successful?

READING THE FUTURE.

The latest craze in England, and of course it will come presently to America, is palmistry. It is only the revival of an old science with added skill. Formerly it was practised in the agricultural districts, chiefly among the lads and lasses, by gypsy queens (romany rowney). But it has recently been taken up as an interesting study by the rank and fashion of social life. It is claimed by its votaries that the lines of the hand are much more indicative of character than those of the face, and that from them can be readily foretold what may happen to the neophyte thereof. Many prophecies have been promulgated and proved true in the most remarkable manner of late, as it is said by those who have looked into the matter. The old occult science of astrology, and even mind-reading and psychology, are thought to be hewn into the shade by modern palmistry. This is quite important, if true, and may be utilized in this country in the way of obtaining information in advance of the nominating conventions of 1888. The Republican party especially, should import a skillful Romany Rye at once, to examine the hands of Mr. BLAINE and his opposing candidate for the presidency. Much trouble and vexation of spirit would doubtless be saved in this way, where exact knowledge on the subject could be turned to profitable account by the thrifty.

CARE FOR THE VETERAN.

The increased charity work of the Grand Army of the Republic surely demonstrates the fact that as age creeps upon the survivor of the late war the natural infirmities of man are heavily supplemented by disfigurement connected with the battlefield and the prison pens of the South. Already our national and State soldiers' homes are overcrowded, and the relief funds of the various posts of the organization are inadequate to supply the actual necessities of the needy and unfortunate. Something must be done, or else numbers of the men who defended the Union and upheld the honor and dignity of this old Commonwealth will have to pass their last days in the almshouse.

THE NEW YEAR'S LIST OF GOOD-LOOKING ONE.

But there is even a more serious phase to this question than caring for the sick and decrepit. There are many veterans who, though not possessed of full physical powers, are yet able to earn a comfortable living could they get suitable employment. These men have a just claim upon every citizen who, as a result of their services, is enjoying peace and prosperity. The work of the Grand Army of the Republic is now supplemented by an organization within its ranks called "The Veterans' Rights Union and Employment Bureau." Its objects are to grant temporary assistance to the veteran or his dependent family; to secure temporary and permanent employment to those who are able to earn a living; to furnish information concerning pensions, State aid and other claims upon State or nation, and to make its office a general source of information for veterans and a means of securing to them their just dues. Its work is almost limitless, the field of its operations boundless, and its resources unreasonably small. It will no doubt receive the moral and financial support of the department enactment, were it not that it is badly inadequate and comes from those who can ill afford to contribute even in so good a cause.

THE FASHION NOW.

Description of Some New "Chicken Fixins."

Novelties in Ruchings of all Sorts for Brightening Up Plain Dresses.

The Clerical Collar the Latest Thing in Neckwear.

There is great variety this season in the "chicken fixins."—the ruchings, pretty collars and cuffs, ornaments for the hair, chemisettes, etc.—with which the modern woman dresses will brighten up plain house dresses, or make changes in simple evening toilets, and the results are correspondingly varied and charming.

A DESERVING CONGRESS.

The electoral-college bill now before Congress may be said to be certain of final passage at the present session of Congress, the conference committee having reached the conclusion that the House amendments to the Senate bill should be adopted.

WHAT OF THE CONGO?

Explorer STANLEY of "Dark Continent" fame is to be given the freedom of the city of London next Thursday. This is quite right, for Mr. STANLEY needs freedom wherever he may be. He was accustomed to a great deal of it, according to his own account, in Africa, though at the expense of his health.

READING THE FUTURE.

The latest craze in England, and of course it will come presently to America, is palmistry. It is only the revival of an old science with added skill. Formerly it was practised in the agricultural districts, chiefly among the lads and lasses, by gypsy queens (romany rowney). But it has recently been taken up as an interesting study by the rank and fashion of social life.

CARE FOR THE VETERAN.

The increased charity work of the Grand Army of the Republic surely demonstrates the fact that as age creeps upon the survivor of the late war the natural infirmities of man are heavily supplemented by disfigurement connected with the battlefield and the prison pens of the South. Already our national and State soldiers' homes are overcrowded, and the relief funds of the various posts of the organization are inadequate to supply the actual necessities of the needy and unfortunate.
